Masashi Mori

Moririn launched its business over 350 years ago, starting out as a cotton broker also involved in sales of cotton thread and textiles. Ever since, determined to live up to its founding mission of “contributing to more prosperous lifestyles,” the company has remained firmly committed to turning out fine-quality materials, the proven cornerstone of any textile manufacturer. Toward that end, we have channeled the full measure of our energies into the development of original materials.

Today, Moririn mobilizes personnel keenly versed in all stages of textile operations, from spinning to weaving, knitting, dyeing, and sewing, thereby advancing an impressive scope of business activities. As a “specialist textiles trading company” also possessing manufacturer functions, we stand out on the strength of a supply system capable of addressing customer demands from the upstream through downstream sectors. Moririn has expanded its business on the power of expertise in broad-ranging business domains and stellar specialization.

We have set up production and logistics hubs both domestically and overseas, and thereby established a proprietary supply chain management (SCM) system that covers everything from the development of materials to the planning and production of goods, as well as enabling thorough quality control and overall logistics.

This SCM system links Japan with China and ASEAN nations, and allows us to offer optimal services in each location. In recent years, through such endeavors as investing in the establishment of a logistics facility in Bangladesh and factory in Korea; focusing on breaking into foreign markets; and expanding our presence in Central America, South America and Europe; our scope for activities on the global stage has been increasing.

Although the textile industry is experiencing great change, we at Moririn see this as an opportunity to demonstrate our endeavor, and we will aim for increased sales through proactive sales activities and strategic investments. Not only that, we will look for inspiration in our roots to improve the quality of our proposals, while also placing a separate focus on personnel development and the creation of a comfortable workplace for our employees. Our business environment is drastically changing, and it dictates that sustainable growth will not be possible through conventional methods, and thus we must take it upon ourselves to adjust.

In order to provide comprehensive support to our customers, our eight business groups will work together to promote business of a high standard. As a specialist textiles trading company, Moririn is determined to lead the industry with even greater originality over the years to come, sparing no time or effort to excel as a best company capable of swiftly supplying new added value to our customers.

“The journey from yarn, to all things under the sun.”

Look for greatness from Moririn — a company devoted to a brighter and more functional future.

Maximizing Customer Value

Each of our broadly deployed centers for sales, production, and logistics along the coast of China and further inland plays an important role in Moririn's SCM platform.

Our production and logistics centers on the Chinese coast are solely managed by Moririn, not subcontracted, so our flexibility to quickly meet your tight production schedules and in the quantities you desire is the Moririn advantage. The best products all at the right time and at reasonable prices ensure your profitability. This is the market positioning that comes with Moririn's SCM.
